Ever wonder exactly why the world is in the miserable shape it is now? It's because of an orchestrated effort trying to destroy our modern society and its governments, social institutions, and economic system in order to usher in a new global centralized authority and digital financial system to completely subjugate every human being on this planet. It's about trying to gain power and control through stealing all of our possessions, money and freedoms, little by little. Fortunately, this seems to be taking a lot longer than originally planned, so they're getting desperate and reckless as time goes by. And deranged, too; spouting nonsense phrases like "you'll own nothing, and be happy". That's just the insane megalomaniacal ramblings of a demented old fart.

Here are some corporations (with market capitalization), organizations, families and a few individuals that are destroying your way of life on a planetary scale. It would really be nice if they were appropriately dealt with.
